legged under the direction of the chief officer, Mr. Thurber, who, in the absence of Captain Waring, was in command. The crew kept the flames within bounds until the arrival of a number of fire-engines and the fire-boat, William F. Havemeyer. Seven lines of hose stretched from the fire-boat and engines threw torrents of water into the hold and on the cargo, quenching the flames after twenty minutes' hard work. From the perishable nature of the cargo, which is composed entirely of tea, it is estimated that the damage from fire, water and smoke will amount to between $10,000 and $15,000, which is fully covered by insurance in various English companies. The only part of the vessel injured was the wood-work of the lower deck.

The Gordon Castle is a large iron vessel, one of the Ennis Castle line, plying between Glasgow, China and this port. She arrived here on the 2nd inst. with 40,000 packages of tea, consigned to Henderson & Co., of 9 Bowling Green. Bulk was broken on board the vessel early Saturday morning, and 10,000 chests of the tea were unloaded during the day. At the close of their work the hatches were placed on and sealed by the Customs House Inspector. Since then no one has been in the hold. It is supposed that the fire originated from a spark from the pipe of a workman.—New York World.

CORRESPONDENCE.

To the Editor of the "CHINA MAIL."

Hongkong, Nov. 29, 1878.

SIR,—I write, in the interest of truth and justice, to protest against some statements in your leader of last night, which reflect most unfairly upon the Christian character of my fellow-residents in this Colony.

There always have been differences of opinion amongst Christians as to the amount and degree of religious instruction to be imparted to the young, and there always will be from the nature of the case. But when Christian men "feel that the only solution of the difficulty is to abolish religion altogether from the school work and make the same wholly secular," it is only right that they should be told plainly that in so doing they are stultifying themselves as professed believers in Christ, and are not only taking up a distinctively heathen position but one decidedly antagonistic to Christ and Christianity. Many who call themselves secularists I believe have been led into this by specious arguments and ingenious distortions of the truth, and are therefore to be pitied as victims of ignorance, blind led by the blind; but those who intelligently and resolutely come forward to defend secular schools from which Christianity is abolished are doing their best to destroy Christianity and take their place accordingly with the worst enemies of mankind. When we find on a religious question involving a vital principle, that in spite of their irreconcilable differences on other points Ultramontane Romanists and staunch Protestants are agreed, it is a priori probable that both are in this case right. The principle we assert is this, that all education given by Christians shall be distinctively Christian or in other words religious.

Now I am happy to believe from personal enquiry on this subject that "three fourths of the foreign residents in this Colony are" not "Secular" but religious; while as to the "majority of the population of the United Kingdom" they have pronounced unanimously during the past seven years in favour of religious education. In spite of all the activity of the "secularists," backed by the support of Government, what do we find is the result? Do the people of England hail with joy the opportunity of casting away religion from the schools in which their children are taught or not? Let us remember that the true test is not the position adopted by Government towards schools, but the position taken up by the parents of those who are to be taught. Look at the fact that at the beginning of the present year the average attendance in Church of England and Wesleyan schools was 1,425,000 children, against 435,000 in Board (presumably secular) and 247,000 in British or undenominational (but not secular) schools; whilst the actual number of children on the roll of the denominational schools of England in July last was over two millions. But not only so, Board Schools have been compelled in many instances by the force of public opinion—Christian opinion—to introduce distinctively Christian teaching, and again it is found that out of the tens of thousands of children in London alone in Board Schools, barely one per cent take advantage of the conscience clause, which permits them to receive a purely secular education. This was clearly set forth at the recent distribution of prizes for religious knowledge, obtained by those very children, held under the auspices of the School Board of the City of London. Governor Hannessy has a far better idea of the real tone of English feeling on this great question than you give him credit for in your remarks, and he knows also that the Chinese have no objection to the teaching of doctrinal truth as the fundamental of all instruction. Nay they hold it to be our disgrace as a country claiming to be not only literary and cultivated but first and foremost in all intellectual matters, that judging from our Central School here we are a people without truth, without anything worth teaching concerning the higher attributes of human nature. You point to "the few others who might be able to see their interests promoted by the practical adoption of the ideas suggested," from which remark one might be led to think that selfish personal interests move those to whom His Excellency referred in his recent speech. The interests involved really are those of Christ's Church and of the truth of the Gospel as against idolatry and irreligion. I have never concealed my conviction, deepened with the growth of years, that the Central School of Hongkong is a promoter of both these, and therefore an enemy amongst many others to the progress of the Gospel in South China. I am happy to know that many fellow-residents share this conviction with

Hongkong, Nov. 29th 1878.

DEAR SIR,—I am, through your journal, to call the attention of Bishop Baimond to the fact that the Catholic Register instead of adhering to its prospectus is turning out an intrusive little object. It said in its first issue that the object of the Register is to present to the Catholic world a synopsis of the B-Rome, and of the acts and speeches of His Holiness the Pope, of his various representatives in other countries affecting Catholic interests, of the progress of missions, especially of those in the East, of the position of the various controversies that rage round the outskirts of Catholic truth, and of the vicissitudes of the struggle between the church and the world. Further on it said: "We intend to do this in all clarity and kindness, to enter into controversy with no man, to confine ourselves simply to stating facts and opinions without any direct reference to the number of Catholics." On this promise the Register has been true, and they are certainly entitled to expect that some more Catholic news such as the success of the late Bazaar, the late event at the Catholic Circle &c. will find their way into its columns instead of old subjects already mooted in the local daily papers. Nay, I failed to see what on earth the Catholics, as Catholics, have to do with the policy of the Government, construction of the gaoi, speeches of the unofficial members of the Council &c. &c.

If the editor of the "Register" wishes to flatter the Governor, and to check those who do not agree with his views, he is at liberty to do so, as anybody else, but in another way, and not in the name of Catholics, in a Catholic journal supported solely by Catholics.

I presume to believe that the majority of the Catholics agree with the Hon. Mr. Kewick, and they are certainly of opinion that Hongkong has more need of a better Hospital for the poor sufferer than a more comfortable Hotel for the felons who deserve no sympathy but severe punishment.

I am, Dear Sir,
Yours faithfully,
A CATHOLIC.

Police Intelligence.

(Before J. J. Francis, Esq.)

29th Nov., 1878.

ALLEGED LARCENY BY A EUROPEAN.

William Steel, a seaman, unemployed, was charged with stealing about five dollars in money, the property of one James Toppie, another seaman. Defendant had been in gaol for drunkenness and now admitted having had the money, but said he took it for safe keeping and had lost it. It appears that when he was charged before Mr. Francis for drunkenness he said that he dropped some money whilst in the chair and wanted to stop to pick it up. The chair-coolies would not stop and the money was lost. On these grounds Mr. Francis now discharged the defendant.

LARCENY.

Li A-yam, a bricklayer, was sent to 6 months' hard labour and ordered to be exposed 6 hours in the stocks at the whipping post for stealing two fowls, the property of one Chan Akoi.

ASSAULT.

Leung Ayuk, a coolie, was sent to 7 days' hard labour without the option of a fine for assaulting one Lam Ping-wa, a cook.

Drunkenness.

Henry Haines, seaman H.M.S. Maggie, drunk and disorderly in the streets. Fined 5 shillings and ordered to be sent on board his ship.

Marine Court.

The Court of Enquiry was continued today at the Harbour Office to investigate the charge preferred by the crew of the British Major, against Captain Bryde, the Master of the vessel.

The Court comprised Messrs C. V. O'neagh (Acting Police Magistrate), President; J. P. McKuen, Acting Harbour Master; T. G. Linstead, unofficial Justice of the Peace; Captain Monkman, Master British ship Lord Macaulay; and Captain McMurdo, Government Marine Surveyor.

Mr. Toller appeared to watch the case on behalf of Captain Bryde. Harry Hansen, the sailmaker, was first called, and gave similar evidence to that which had already been given by the witnesses which were examined on Tuesday last. He said he had never seen any of the crew ill-treated; he had seen the Captain threaten one man (Wallace) with a piece of coal. The treatment was the worst he had seen since he had been going to sea 24 years. He had not asked for his discharge, but would sooner have his discharge than remain in the ship.

By one of the complainants.—When I called the Chief Officer in the morning he said he would not turn out until the Captain called him. Mr. Toller then addressed the Court on behalf of the defendant. He said the Court would notice how easy it was to bring a charge of this nature. The men had asked for their discharges when they arrived here, and a favorable inference might be drawn from the fact of the Captain having refused to grant their request. He knew what would be the result of his refusing; the men would do the next best thing for themselves, which was to bring the present charges. The Captain admitted, through him (Mr. Toller), that he had frequently made use of bad language towards several members of the crew, but he would ask the Court to consider that defendant had made a very tedious report of his cargo. The defendant expressed regret that he should have made use of unbecoming language. The language was very much exaggerated, however, and no threatening language was ever used by him. With regard to the alleged assault on the second mate, he (the 2nd mate) could have taken out a summons.

Mr. McKuen said the 2nd mate had been to him to complain.

Mr. Toller.—It was true the defendant had d their souls to h— on several occasions; but it was impossible to have a crew all perfect, and the Napier's crew was no exception. The most important part of the charge was drunkenness; but fortunately the Captain was able to prove the quantity of liquor which had been consumed on board. There was a case of gin—most unfortunate case of gin—which had found its way on board at Anjer. The Captain went on shore there with Captain Hastings; they had a glass of gin together, and subsequently they each had the third of a small bottle of champagne, not a very good mixture it was true, but such was the fact. The Captain had been in the sun for four hours, the equatorial sun of Anjer, and he had been very weak for some time before that. The steward would tell the Court that the Captain would take no medicine, being a homeopathist. The two captains had another glass of gin on returning on board the ship, and the men belonging to Captain Hastings' ship had a drink out of the same bottle. The steward will swear that all that was used on board was three bottles which were served out to the crew. Three more were used during the next few days, and the rest were thrown overboard; five persons having had liquor out of the three bottles. The crew had sworn too much; they spoke of the Captain as being dead drunk; and he (Mr. Toller) put it to the Court that it was impossible for three bottles of Geneva gin to make men in the state the Captain was said to have been in. The statements of the men had a substratum of fact, but were all much exaggerated. The Captain had committed no breach of proper discipline. He would call Dr. Young to prove the state of defendant's health when he arrived here.—He would prove that the defendant was suffering from a certain kind of illness. He was suffering from a disease of the nerves.

The Court: How long was the ship coming from Anjer?

Mr. Toller: Several weeks.

Continued.—The Captain was prepared to be examined on oath; he was charged with no criminal offence; it was entirely a matter affecting his certificate, to try whether he was a fit and proper person to have charge of a ship.

Mr. O'neagh said that a man charged before a Magistrate with drunkenness was not allowed to be examined on oath.

Mr. Toller said that was another matter; that was a penal offence.

Dr. Young was then called. He said he attended the Napier. The Captain appeared to be suffering from a nervous complaint both in mind and body. He was literally covered with boils. These would be caused by insufficiency of food and poverty of blood. The Doctor gave him a port wine tonic combined with another tonic, and in three or four days he appeared all right.

By the Court.—The excitement arising from drink would pass off in five or six weeks.

Herbert Henry Shamler, the Steward, said:—We took in 1 case sherry, 1 case port wine, 1 case brandy, 1 case Scotch whisky, and 6 dozen pints of Ale. Out of this 9 bottles port wine, 6 of whisky, and 6 bottles of brandy were given to the crew, 4 doz of beer were given to the carpenter and sailmaker. The rest was used for the officers. About 4 bottles of brandy were used in the cabin; of the sherry 34 bottles were used by myself and 84 in the cabin; 5 bottles of Scotch whisky were used at the cabin table. The Captain did not appear to be a man who had a craving for drink. He seldom took anything at meals except a cup of coffee. He took rather less than more than the Chief Officer. I never saw him the worse for liquor between Cardiff and Anjer. He went ashore twice at Anjer and returned on board finally about 4 past 5 o'clock. He spoke to me about two stores; he was sober then. A case of gin was sent on board containing 16 bottles. Captain Hastings came on board to breakfast the next day. They had a glass of gin after breakfast. They only had one glass. The Captain was writing letters after that; he wrote to the owner: I knew this because I assisted him. We started to get up the anchor at 4 o'clock. I saw the Captain leave the shore at 25 minutes past 4, and he reached the ship at 10 minutes to 6. The sun was very strong, and he had no protection for his head but a straw hat. There was no covering in the boat. I have been a steward for many years and during that time I have seen a good many cases of drunkenness. I am able to detect such cases. When the O'neagh came on board I could see that he had had something to drink, but he was not drunk. He had his senses about him. He spoke to the 2nd mate in his usual manner. He was on quite sober then. There was no more drink used by the Captain that night. The last I saw of the Captain was at 10 o'clock he was then on deck and came to look at his charts. I saw him again at 4 past 5 the next morning at the chart-table with the Chief Officer. He complained of a fearful pain in his head and said he must have got a sunstroke. I persuaded him to take a black draught before he had his cup of tea. I do not recollect what morning it was we saw the dismasted schooner. The bottle of gin could have been got at without my knowledge; it was never looked up. I never knew the Captain to go to the bottle himself; he always asked me for it and I pointed it out. I gave him 15 drops of laudanum at a glass. He complained about getting very little sleep. The gin was used in various ways until 9 bottles remained; this was thrown overboard. I can positively swear that nobody got drunk on the gin; it was not drunk in sufficient quantities. The Captain has used some rough language once or twice; I have come in for my share of it.

By the Court.—There was no liquor account kept. I am speaking from memory. I never saw the least signs of drink on anybody on board. The reason it was thrown overboard was because the Captain did not like it on board. The owners sent on board the liquor at Cardiff.

By one of the crew—I did not tell you in the presence of one of the petty officers that I did not order from the Captain to throw the gin overboard. I did not tell you that the Captain's carryings on this passage had made him 12 years older. I did not say that I should be ashore to see Thompson, the Harbour Master, as soon as the anchor was down in Hongkong. I did not say that I had lost my rest on board by attending on the Captain whilst in Anjer. I did draft a paper for the crew to copy and send ashore to the Harbour Master. I did not consult with the sailmaker and the engineer about punishing the Captain, and did not threaten to put six balls through anybody who went against me.

William Thompson, the Chief Officer, was next examined. He said:—I have never seen the Captain under the influence of drink. I have heard him damn the men once or twice. He once called the 2nd mate a son of a— and threatened to knock his head off. I saw the Captain mark off the chart every day. I never told the man at the wheel not to mind what the Captain said, as he did not know what he was saying. I threw the gin overboard but not all. There were 8 or 9 bottles in the case, and I kept 5 or 3 out of it for my own use. The steward had some and the 2nd mate had some. The Captain did not care to trust the steward to throw the liquor overboard. I was not at all surprised at being ordered to throw the liquor overboard as I have been with the Captain before 4 years ago, and he did the same thing.

Mr. McKuen: It is a very strange thing to do, to get a lot of spirits on board and then throw it overboard; it looks as though you were afraid of it.

Witness: I never saw any one illuse it.

By Mr. Toller.—The defendant is a rather excitable man.

By the Court.—The crew was not a very good, one or two men were pretty good men, but they were all very insolent. Some men have never been spoken cross to.

By Mr. Toller.—The Captain was very sick after leaving Anjer, he could not eat or sleep.

James Stewart, an apprentice, was next called. He said he did not see the Captain drunk.

By one of the complainants.—The mate told me as I was coming on shore that I had better say I had not seen the Captain drunk; he was going to see Mr. Toller.

By Mr. Toller.—The Captain told me a day or two ago to tell the truth.

Captain Bryde was then allowed to give a statement as to the marking of the charts.

The Court was then cleared, and on re-assembly,

The following finding was delivered:—The Court finds that the Master William Lacon Bryde, number of whose certificate of competency is 15,434, has been guilty of misconduct in using abusive language towards his crew generally, and of drunkenness shortly after leaving Anjer, but taking into consideration his general sobriety during the rest of the voyage, the Court hereby adjudges the said William Lacon Bryde to be severely reprimanded. Given under our hands at Victoria Hongkong this 29th day of November, 1878.

The Straits.

(Singapore Daily Times.)

Among the passengers who arrived by the P. and O. Co's steamer Geelong yesterday (Nov. 10th) was Vice-Admiral R. Coote, C.B., the newly appointed Naval Commander-in-chief of the China station. Admiral Coote disembarked from the Geelong and went on board of the Iron Duke, which will take him down to Hongkong, although it was the original intention of the Admiral to have continued the voyage in the Geelong. The Admiral was entertained yesterday at Government House, and His Excellency the Governor will return his visit on board the Iron Duke this afternoon, leaving Johnston's Pier at 4.30.

Admiral Hillyar, C.B., the retiring Commander-in-chief of the China station, delivered over the naval command to his successor, Vice-Admiral R. Coote, C.B., last Sunday morning, when the usual salutes were exchanged between their respective flagships, the Audacious and Iron Duke.

H. E. the Governor, accompanied by Lady Robinson, Capt. Walker, A.D.C., Mr. E. W. Howard, Private Secretary to the Hon'ble Major McNair and Dr. Rowell, left for Bangkok at 10 a.m. to-day (Nov. 12th) in H. M. S. Modeste. His Excellency arrived at Johnston's Pier at 9.45, where he was received by a guard of honor of the Singapore Volunteers, under the command of Major Gray, and, after shaking hands with various heads of departments who had assembled to see him off, embarked in the Master-Attendant's gig, which was taken in tow by the Colonial steamer Philo's steam-launch, and, immediately on the arrival of the Vice-regal party on board, the Modeste proceeded on her voyage. The Governor expects to be absent from the Colony about a fortnight, and during his absence the Hon. Cecil C. Smith will attend to the duties of the Government. The Volunteers turned out about 40 strong, and presented arms in right soldierly style, which did credit to their drill and discipline.

H. M. S. Audacious, with Admiral C. F. Hillyar on board, left the roads at daylight this morning (Nov. 15th) for England. As the Audacious steamed slowly through the harbour, the men of H. M. S. Iron Duke manned the yards and gave three hearty cheers to the departing vessel, which were duly acknowledged from the Audacious.

We learn that His Highness the Maharajah of Johore will be presented at his residence, Tyersall, tonight, to-morrow afternoon (Nov. 16th) with the Insignia of the Royal Prussian Order of the Crown, First Class, which has been conferred on him by His Imperial Majesty of Germany. The Order will be presented by Dr. Bisber, Consul for the German Empire.

Senior Menacari for many years Spanish Consul at this port is a passenger by the Peiho from Marseilles to Hongkong to assume his appointment and promotion as Consul of the First Class there.

H. M. S. Iron Duke, with Vice Admiral R. Coote, C.B., on board, left the roads this morning (Nov. 18th) for Malacca and Penang, in order to enable the new Naval Commander-in-chief to inspect the two Settlements before proceeding to China.

CHINESE FAMILY LIFE.

No. 6.

I am the seventh child of my father by his legitimate wife. At the age of 28 I married a small-footed woman of Y— who was then 18 years of age; she is still alive, and the only relative she has living is an aunt. I never had a concubine. All my five children are alive. The eldest is a boy, 23 years of age, with a wife and two children. The next is a girl, aged 20, engaged to be married to a trader in W—. My next son, aged 18, keeps a shop in our village; he is very intelligent and took to a shop two years ago. The next girl, aged 16, remains at home, as also the youngest, aged 14. Neither is yet engaged. Of course all my womanhood have small feet. My wife has a remarkably good temper. I have never had either to beat or to scold her since we were married. I never knew anyone with so accommodating a temper. I myself, as you see, take things pretty easily. I will now proceed a generation higher. My paternal grandfather had a daughter and two sons by his first wife. At her death he married again and by this wife he had five sons, of which my father was the fourth. At the death of his second wife he married a widow. I never saw any of these except the last mentioned, who died when I was about 20 years of age. My grandfather kept a rice-shop in our village. As I cannot go any higher with my ancestors, I will tell you our present circumstances. My house as I said is in the village of O—, 10 li outside the west gate of— We have occupied this house for 60 years. From the street you enter a small court on the three sides of which are the rooms, which are thus occupied: one son and his wife live in the left hand one, and my wife in the right hand one, and the middle one is our public room and kitchen: the two girls sleep in a small closet behind this last. I possess seven more [a little over one acre] of paddy-land just outside the west gate. This land gives two crops a year. My father leased it to the father of the present tenant about 50 years ago. I can turn him out at any time. I need not even give him notice: all I have to do is to send another tenant there at due date. Due means every five years, for the lease is drawn up so as to expire at the end of each fifth year. Each now produces 10 loads of grain at about Tls. 1.2 a load. This makes over Tls. 80 for each crop or Tls. 160 a year. The lessee pays me about Tls. 33 a year when the crops are fair average ones, but it does not happen more than once or twice in ten years that I get my full rent. I do not receive my rent in silver, but I personally or by my agent, visit the land when the grain is ripe, and see how much is due me. He tells me when he is ready, and I go round to the grain shops to find a purchaser. Having struck my bargain, I direct the lessee to convey the grain thither and receive my price from the shop. Properly I am entitled to three-tenths of the crop. It makes no difference to the lessee's rights whether the land remains in my family or is transferred: the deeds regulate his rights. When I die my two sons will share my property. It will not be necessary to set apart portions for the girls. Their brothers will marry them off in time. My wife may receive a certain amount, but the property will really belong to my sons. If important steps regarding the property are taken during her lifetime, of course she will be consulted. In case of dispute—well, I don't know. That never struck me, but it is impossible! What sort of a son would he be who disputed with his mother?—Shanghai Courier.

HINDOO RELIGION.

It is currently reported that an undergraduate of the Calcutta University, on being asked his opinion of the Lord Protector, made answer as follows:

"Oliver Cromwell was a very stern man; he slew his king with repeated beheadings; after this he was never seen to smile, but often heard, pensively to murmur, 'If I had only served my God as I served my King, he would not have forsaken me in my old age.'"

It is as petition writers that Angloized natives whose English education has stopped at the threshold of a university, chiefly distinguish themselves. An officer attached to the Hyderabad Contingent was once favored with a thrilling appeal from a native woman converted to Christianity:

"O Gentlemen and Ladies: Having heard of your benevolence, I therefore make it my duty to come to you not only to pay my respects, but to procure an help from gentlemen and ladies. I need scarcely mention, by the grace and favor of God, that I got three brothers, and two sisters including me, but my brothers are dumbless, and they have no legs and hand, but for my another sister, she have no eyes, and for myself I can't talk, and besides that my brothers and sisters they never eat rice nor bread except milk and sugar, and my brothers and sister they are turned as Christians. For which act of kindness I shall ever pray for your long life and prosperity."

The foregoing petition was probably the handiwork of a professional letter-writer, but the following application for assistance was penned by the petitioner himself:

"Sir,—Excuse me if I presume to unfold myself and my grievances to find comfort in my trouble bosom. Born and brought up in Islam the top of my head, I have none to look after and back me from the disgrace and want which I have fallen with my wife and children. The late decrease of the pay to my post of gate-keeper has made a considerable effect even to the bare living of ourselves, so that life is seemed no better than a torment. And I don't know what to do and whom to complain, and where to harbor myself in. At last it is the innate and intuitive impulse as it were in me to look upon your honor as a father and patron to keep myself under your wings and to hatch warm comforts to my cold bosom. I have the honor to be, sir, yours—most obedient servant."

BURNING DIAMONDS.

In the year 1694 it was discovered, by actual experiment, that a diamond would burn. Cosmo III. had one fixed in the focus of a burning glass, and after some exposure to the rays of the sun it cracked, corroded and finally disappeared like a ghost, leaving no trace behind. Experiments of this kind were costly. It was only a sovereign prince who could afford to see his jewels vanish like the gifts of a fairy godmother. Another potentate, Emperor Francis I., tried a number of valuable diamonds in the heat of a smelting furnace, and may have felt some gratification in finding that they had disappeared. This was in 1750, and about twenty years later a magnificent diamond was burned in France. A jeweler named Le Blanc denied the possibility of burning diamonds, and suspected some unfair play on the part of Maquer, the chemist who conducted the operation. He had often, he asserted, exposed diamonds to great heat, with the sole result of increasing their brilliancy. Mr. Streeter has done the same with success. But Le Blanc only knew half of what Mr. Streeter knows, and when the chemist demanded that he should enclose some diamonds in coal in a crucible, he rashly assented and in three hours they had all disappeared. Then another jeweler, Millard by name, who seems to have had a suspicion of the truth, put three diamonds into an earthen-bowl pipe, packed in powdered charcoal, and exposed them, without injury, to intense heat. Lavoisier, who was present, proved, in 1770, that by shutting out the air the diamond was preserved in a furnace, but that the admission of oxygen, with which the carbon combines, allows the diamond to burn like a piece of coal.

One of the speakers at the recent meeting of the British Association is reported to have said: "That animals may possess the moral sense in a rudimentary form was illustrated by a striking anecdote of a skye-terrier, who having stolen a cuplet off the table and kept it in his possession for some minutes, was impelled by a pure sense of remorse to bring it back unopened." That does look like conscience; but a lady, hearing the anecdote, quietly asked: "Might it not be that the outlet had too much pepper on it?"

In a certain city a toper, while lately wandering homeward at midnight, was seized with a tipsy fancy to serenade his own wife. Accordingly, as he neared his domicile, he turned his coat wrong side out, struck his hat jauntily upon one side of his head, and, passing into the yard, took his place under her window. It had occurred to him that after the serenade he would very innocently pass into the house, enquire what noise that was, and appear highly incensed at the 50 years ago. I can turn him out at any time. I need not even give him notice: all I have to do is to send another tenant there at due date. Due means every five years, for the lease is drawn up so as to expire at the end of each fifth year. Each now produces 10 loads of grain at about Tls. 1.2 a load. Good night! good night, my dearest! How swift the moments fly!

To his own mind he never sang better. He was exceeding himself, and had struck out in the second stanza, when the window was softly raised—his heart trembled. "Come along in, and go to bed, my noisy rowdy!" said the wife, who notwithstanding that he was disguised (in liquor), recognised the "Ethiopian" as her spouse. The song ceased, the husband put his coat on right side out, adjusted his hat, went into the house, and went to bed—alone. He hasn't been serenading since.
